NEAR CASTLETON, PEAK DISTRICT, DERBYSHIRE

MAP: OS EXPLORER OL1

The Peak District National Park is renowned for its contrasting White and Dark Peak landscapes – quiet limestone dales and wild upland moors. This easy 4.5 mile (7.3km) walk in the Peak District starting from the picturesque village of Castleton crosses some typical limestone scenery, providing fine views across the valley to the Great Ridge. It climbs quite steeply at first and leads into Cave Dale with the ruined 11th-century Peveril Castle perched high above, following this typical limestone dale south using the Limestone Way. Cave Dale was initially formed by glacial meltwater carving a deep narrow valley in the soluble limestone. The river then found a route underground leaving a dry valley with caverns underneath. There are excellent views of the Ridge and of Mam Tor. Reaching the summit of Winnats Pass it returns along a minor road to Castleton.

PAP OF GLENCOE REFLECTING IN LOCH LEVEN, HIGHLANDS, SCOTLAND

MAP: OS EXPLORER 392

Overlooking the tranquil shores of Loch Leven, the thimblelike Pap of Glencoe stands at the entrance to Glen Coe, a famous steep-sided Highland valley and a magnet for walkers. From the village of Kinlochleven, at the head of the small sea loch of Loch Leven, this linear walk follows the West Highland Way over a distance of 15 miles (24.4km) to Fort William. After a climb through woodland from Kinlochleven, there are fine views down to the village, the loch, and across to the Pap of Glencoe, then the jagged ridge of the Aonach Eagach comes into view. The route passes along a valley amid the mountains of the imposing Mamores range, then follows forestry trails through undulating open countryside to Glen Nevis, with views of Ben Nevis and the outlying peaks. Finally, it descends via forest tracks and roads to Fort William, the end of the West Highland Way.

BOSCASTLE HARBOUR, CORNWALL

MAP: OS EXPLORER 111

This exhilarating 9 mile (14.6km) walk combines a superb section of Cornish coastline and one of England's prettiest fishing harbours with a rural section including the woodland of St Nectan's Glen. Starting from the main street in Tintagel with its links to the legends of King Arthur and its picturesque old post office, it descends to the ruins of the castle on the cliffs, connected to the headland by a cantilever bridge. It follows the South West Coast Path towards Boscastle over a series of descents and ascents, some quite steep. Boscastle's beautiful harbour is set at the end of a long valley in a natural inlet protected by two stone walls. There are many quaint old houses in the village. The return route is via field paths, descending to the lovely St Nectan's Glen, a deep wooded valley where a spectacular waterfall plunges 18m through a rock hole.

PATH THROUGH BLUEBELLS, EMMETTS GARDEN, IDE HILL, KENT

MAP: OS EXPLORER 147

Emmetts Garden is a rare, stunning Edwardian Garden renowned for its beautiful display of bluebells in late spring and vibrant colours all year round. There are fine views over the Weald of Kent. This short 3 mile (4.8km) walk starts from Ide Hill, the highest village in Kent, with its large village green, passing the seat dedicated to Octavia Hill, a Victorian social campaigner who helped to set up the National Trust. It then follows the Greensand Way, a sandstone escarpment parallel to the North Downs, and passes through Scords Wood. Here the walk can be extended to the summit of Toys Hill (235m), where there are outstanding views of the Weald. This area was a location in medieval times for charcoal burners and wood collectors as well as for grazing livestock. The walk passes the entrance to Emmetts Garden, to return via woodland paths to Ide Hill.

BROADWAY VILLAGE, COTSWOLDS, WORCESTERSHIRE

MAP: OS EXPLORER OL45

The Cotswold Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty (AONB) is mostly farmland, both cultivated and pasture, with some areas of woodland and open upland. This pleasant walk of 11 miles (17.9km) begins at the National Trust car park at Dover's Hill, northwest of Chipping Campden, with its many fine buildings and stone market hall built in 1627. Footpaths, bridleways and country lanes are followed through fields, woodlands and the rolling hills of the Cotswold escarpment to the village of Broadway. The name of this quintessential Cotswold village refers to the wide, grass-fringed High Street, one of the longest in England, lined with mainly 16th-century houses with a large green. The walk returns to the start using part of the Cotswold Way, passing the Broadway Tower, an 18th-century folly, an iconic landmark on the escarpment, where there are far-reaching views.

HAMPTON COURT PALACE, SURREY

MAP: OS EXPLORER 161

Hampton Court was one of Henry VIII's favourite palaces, surrounded by beautiful and varied parkland on the north bank of the River Thames. The splendid red-brick palace was built by Cardinal Wolsey from 1516 to 1520 as a gift for King Henry VIII, who added the huge turreted gatehouse, a Royal Tennis Court, an astronomical clock, the Great Dining Hall and some enormous kitchens. In the 17th century, the gardens were landscaped by Sir Christopher Wren and the famous maze planted. The small knot garden was created in 1924 in the style of the original Tudor gardens. This 6.5 mile (10.6km) walk starts from Hampton Court station. It follows a section of Thames Path around the edge of Hampton Court Park along the river to Kingston where the London Loop footpath is used to explore the ponds of Bushy Park and the Deer Park before returning to the Palace entrance.

HELMSLEY, NORTH YORKSHIRE

MAP: OS EXPLORER OL26

The North York Moors National Park combines wild, heatherclad upland moorland and dramatic coastal scenery with fascinating villages, ruined abbeys and a scenic steam railway. Helmsley, an appealing market town on the River Rye, has a 12th-century castle with a restored walled garden, many well-preserved red-roofed houses, a church and a stream flowing through the centre. In the cobbled market square the market cross marks the start of the Cleveland Way, which runs 177km around the North York Moors and coast. This 9.8 mile (15.8km) walk follows Beck Dale through woods and across farmland, before descending to the evocative ruins of Rievaulx Abbey, standing in the lush valley of the River Rye. Founded in 1132, it became a flourishing monastic community, but was mostly destroyed in 1538. The Cleveland Way is followed from Rievaulx bridge back to Helmsley.

HORSEY, NORFOLK

MAP: OS EXPLORER OL40

Reeds, fiery scattered clouds and a windmill are reflected in Horsey Mere on the eastern edge of the Norfolk Broads. Standing prominently amidst the Norfolk marshland is Horsey Windpump, a four-storey drainage mill, built in 1912, now owned by the National Trust. Horsey Mere is an open stretch of water, surrounded by reed beds and a high bank. It is a nature reserve, a haven for migrating birds, dragonflies and rare butterflies. This 3.7 mile (6km) pleasant and easy walk in the Norfolk Broads starts from the restored Horsey Drainage Mill close to Horsey Mere. The walk crosses farmland to reach dunes at the glorious, sandy Horsey Beach, a great place to watch seals, especially in the breeding season. The route then follows a short section of Norfolk Coast Path to Horsey Gap, then returns across fields through the village and onto the shores of Horsey Mere.

LYNDHURST, NEW FOREST NATIONAL PARK, HAMPSHIRE

MAP: OS EXPLORER OL22

The New Forest National Park is dominated by open expanses of vegetation including heathland, bogs, woodlands and streams. This environment is maintained through the grazing of thousands of New Forest ponies and cattle. Lyndhurst is the largest village in the New Forest, with many attractions such as the church of St. Michael and All Angels. This short 2.9 mile (4.7km) walk goes north from the centre of Lyndhurst on a path that follows a circular route around an area called the 'Old Race Ground', with woods on one side and a golf course on the other. This extensive area of grassland is a magnet for ponies and cattle. Until around 1880 it was the site of a substantial race ground and from 1922 until the 1940s sales of Forest ponies and a fair were held here. Fallow and roe deer emerge at dusk to feed on the edge of the golf course, which opened in 1890.

CRIBYN FROM PEN Y FAN, BRECON BEACONS, POWYS

MAP: OS EXPLORER OL13

The Brecon Beacons National Park is a diverse landscape of grassy moorland, green valleys, rivers, waterfalls and wetlands centred on a long ridge of six peaks, with straight, plane-cut edges and flat summits. Cribyn is a prominent mountain in the Brecon Beacons with an elevation of 795m, a little lower than the neighbouring peaks of Pen y Fan and Corn Du, connected by a long, imposing escarpment. Like the other peaks of the range, the upper slopes are formed from sandstones with the rock strata tilting gently southward. This lovely 6.5 mile (10.6km) Brecon Beacons walk in Powys explores the limestone country lying south of Crickhowell in the Usk Valley. Starting from the village of Llangattock it uses a section of the peaceful Monmouthshire and Brecon Canal, which follows the line of the Usk Valley. The walk then parallels the Llangatwg Escarpment, passing old limestone quarries, continuing through pleasant rural countryside with some excellent views. Photo © Michael Roberts/Getty Images

OLD WYE BRIDGE AND CATHEDRAL, HEREFORD, HEREFORDSHIRE

MAP: OS EXPLORER 189

Hereford's beautiful 12th-century cathedral is home to the famous Hereford Mappa Mundi, created around 1300, the largest medieval world map to survive, containing over 500 drawings on vellum. It also has a 17th-century Chained Library, holding over 1,500 rare books, including 229 medieval manuscripts. In the heart of Hereford, the Black and White House is a remarkably well-preserved Jacobean timber-framed house built in 1621. This linear walk of 6.7 miles (10.9km) along part of the Wye Valley Walk starts from the 15th-century stone Wye Bridge on a riverside path and crosses the river on a victorian suspension bridge, Victoria Bridge. The path runs close to the Wye following the flood plain to Hampton Bishop, then along the River Lugg to Mordiford. It skirts ancient woodland to Fownhope, passing Bagpiper's Tump where a bagpiper used to play during the English Civil War.

LOUGHRIGG FELL, LAKE DISTRICT, CUMBRIA

MAP: OS EXPLORER OL7

The natural beauty of the Lake District National Park has attracted many artists and writers for centuries and draws walkers from all over the world. Loughrigg Fell sits in a prominent and isolated position at the junction of five major valley systems, with panoramic views of the Central Fells. Starting from the village of Skelwith Bridge this easy 4.5 mile (7.3km) circular walk follows a narrow lane and a footpath up the fellside, passing some small lakes, to the 335m summit of Loughrigg Fell where there are superb views across to Grasmere and the Langdale Pikes. It then descends through woodland to skirt Loughrigg Tarn, via a stony track or a grassy lakeshore path to return to the start. This most beautiful and secluded tarn is almost circular in form, with a variety of aquatic plants around the margins and offers perfect vistas of the surrounding fells.
