2025

Porto lies along the Douro river, 2 miles (3km) from the river's mouth on the Atlantic Ocean. World-famous for its port wine, it is Portugal's second largest city, and is the commercial and industrial centre for the north. Porto's settlement dates back many centuries, when it was an outpost of the Roman Empire. Its combined Celtic/Latin name, Portus Cale, has been referred to as the origin of the name Portugal.

Located in central Sri Lanka and consisting of the ruins of a stronghold that was built in the late fifth century, Sigiriya is so steep that its top overhangs the sides and rises to 600ft (180m) above the surrounding plain. King Kashyapa I built a palace in the shape of a lion at the summit, intending it to be a safeguard against his enemies. However, the king was defeated in AD495 and the palace fell into ruin.

Ho Chi Minh City lies along the Saigon river to the north of the Mekong river delta, about 50 miles (80km) from the South China Sea. In 1859 the city was captured by the French, and in 1862 it was ceded to France by the Vietnamese emperor Tu Duc. Ho Chi Minh City retains the faded look of a European city, its many Western-style buildings dating from the period of French colonial rule.

Vestrahorn Mountain is located in south-east Iceland, near the town of Höfn. Unlike other mountains in Iceland, which are made of basalt or rhyolite, the Vestrahorn peaks are predominantly gabbro rock. The black sand beaches below the mountain were created by the sea grinding down this volcanic rock over millennia.

The waterfalls are in the Krka National Park in southern Croatia. Formed like a series of terraces, the Krka and Cikola rivers spill over 17 travertine steps into deep pools, before flowing into the next set – creating Skradinski Buk. The falls are so strong that they helped power the world's second oldest hydro-electric plant. There are unpreserved fortresses in the park's vicinity dating back to Roman times.

Capital of Venezuela, and one of the principal cities of South America, Caracas is Venezuela's largest urban agglomeration, and the country's primary centre of industry, commerce, education and culture. Founded in 1567 as Santiago de León de Caracas, the city grew slowly until the 1940s, after which it expanded by monumental proportions, and its influence came to extend to even the remotest parts of the country.

Aloba Arch has a span of approximately 250ft (76m) and a height of nearly 403ft (123m). It is located in the Sahara Desert, a location in which you would not typically expect to see such a formation. UNESCO recognised the Ennedi Plateau, also referred to as the Ennedi Massif, as a World Heritage site in 2016. Aloba Arch's span is considered to be the eighth longest known natural arch.

Wat Tham Sua Temple plays host to an enormous golden Buddha, visible for miles around (Chin Prathapom), which was built in 1973. It is 59ft (18m) high and 33ft (10m) wide, with many local residents coming up daily to make merit with the Buddha. The complex is called the Tiger Cave Temple because the cave was supposedly home to a family of tigers, now represented with a Thai-style tiger shrine.

Bled Island, with its ancient church, rises out of the turquoise water as the crowning jewel of Lake Bled. Long before the current church occupied this spot, there stood a temple to Živa – the pagan goddess of love – but after the conversion to Christianity around AD745, the temple was replaced by a church dedicated to the birth of the Virgin Mary. The bell tower was added in 1465 – and still stands!

Kavala is built on a promontory stretching south into the Gulf of Kaválas in the northern Aegean Sea, opposite the island of Thasos. The town's Turkish quarter is surrounded by Byzantine walls and occupies the small promontory, which is crowned by a Byzantine castle. The new town spreads out north of the main harbour, which was formed by the construction of two long breakwaters after World War II.

Washington Monument, Washington, USA

November

2025

The structure was completed in two phases of construction, one private (1848-54) and one public (1876-84). Built in the shape of an Egyptian obelisk, evoking the timelessness of ancient civilisations, the Washington Monument embodies the awe, respect and gratitude the nation felt for its most essential Founding Father. The National Park Service was given jurisdiction over the Monument in 1933.

Kamloops lies astride the confluence of the North and South Thompson rivers. It originated as a trading settlement, founded by Alexander Ross of the Pacific (Astoria) Fur Company. It is the service centre for a cattle-ranching and lumbering area, and its economic activities include livestock marketing, wood and pulp processing, and food canning and packing. The Highland Valley copper mines are nearby.
